

DON'T SIGN UP FOR THE GREEN DEAL -

IT'S ANOTHER GLOBALIST CON - another attack on our nation!

David Cammegh - January 28th 2013

It's strange, you would be cautious if an untrustworthy looking fellow were to try to sell you something that would involve a detailed 'assessment' of your property (for a central database), lower the price of your house, put you in more debt, and drag you and your nation closer under the dark wings of a global government.

In fact, you might well telephone the police to alert them to the presence of a con-man.

But when it's the government that's pushing a very questionable product with, for example, the help of government organisations such as the BBC, many people tend to trust, thinking that they are being looked after by lovely bountiful politicians, just like what happened when Hansel and Gretel trusted the witch who had the Gingerbread House.

And this is what is happening with today's big government push of the 'Green Deal'.

According to government literature, the 'Green Deal' is 'a revolutionary programme to bring our buildings up to date'. And, 'under the Green Deal, bill payers will be able to get energy efficiency improvements without having to upfront the cash.' This will help towards 'making our homes and businesses more energy efficient' so that 'we can cut our carbon emissions and make real progress toward our 2050 emissions target.'

Let us now consider this a little more closely.

What we are really looking at here is a government top-down con, the purveyors of which assume they know best about whether or not our homes are 'up to date'. The 'Green Deal' 'product' they are peddling will do none other than drag those who fall for it into more debt ('no upfront cash needed') so that we can conform with the incredibly draconian 'carbon emissions' restrictions of 2050.

With reference to those carbon emissions, here is a quote from the Department of Energy and Climate Change website:

The 2008 Climate Change Act established the world's first legally binding climate change target. We aim to reduce the UK's greenhouse gas emissions by at least 80% (from the 1990 baseline) by 2050.

Don't forget they have no idea what that 1990 'baseline' is, though it would be a lot lower than it is now, which means that we are looking at cutting much more than 80% of our current energy consumption, which would leave us with no resources whatsoever, and totally controlled with what we do use - but then, that's their plan.

So far so bad.

It gets worse.

There has been no global warming for nearly two decades, and the whole man-made CO2 driven global warming idea has been totally proven to be a hoax. Which begs the question, why reduce carbon emissions? It also demands an answer to the question: why do we have a Department of Energy and Climate Change sucking up our money taken from us in the form of taxes? We could also ask why we need to pay incredible amounts to monitor carbon emissions? And so on. So, the entire 'Green Deal' is, as far as I can see, based entirely in fraud, a fraud that weakens the people and funds government and corporations at our expense.

Another question you might want to ask is: why do the Americans have a 'Green Energy Loan Program'? And why is it more or less exactly the same as the 'Green Deal'?

Let's see what the American Rosa Koire, who has been battling U.N. Agenda 21 in the USA, says in her excellent book, Behind the Green Mask: UN Agenda 21, has to say about the 'Green Energy Loan Program':

Sponsored by ICLEI, this Green Energy Loan Program has to be one of the biggest boondoggles ever created. Called Property Assessed Clean Energy (PACE), it's a way to have the green dream. Let's say you own a house and want to put solar panels on it. The cost is estimated at between $20,000 and $40,000. You don't have the money and you can't get a home equity line of credit because you're already having a hard time making your mortgage payments. But the county, because it is an ICLEI member and has committed to reducing greenhouse gases, will arrange for you to get a loan of up to 100 percent of the equity value of your house. You can pay it off through increased property tax payments over twenty years. Doesn't matter if your credit is bad, or if you can't really afford to buy those solar panels, because the loan is guaranteed by the property taxes and the house. Either you pay them or the person you sell the house to next will pay. Sounds good, right?

Well, the biggest immediate problem with this is that if your house is foreclosed on by the bank for non-payment of your mortgage, when the property is sold the first thing to get paid is the county taxes.

Yes, you've essentially put your second mortgage in first position ahead of the bank.

By calling it a 'property assessment' instead of a loan, PACE thought it could pull a fast one on the lenders. You might say to yourself, 'What do I care if the bank doesn't get paid off?' You'll care, all right, because the bank's not about to take on more risk that their loans won't be paid off.

So the Federal Housing Finance Agency (Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac) proposed to reduce the potential loan amount for EVERY property in the county by ten percent. Amazing, right? It means that if you normally would have to put twenty percent down and get an eighty percent of value mortgage, after PACE, even if you have nothing to do with it, you'll now only be able to get a seventy percent mortgage. So you'll have to come up with an additional ten percent down payment on any house you'd want to buy in the entire county. If you just want to refinance your house FHFA (which owns 85 percent of all home loans) will require you to pay off the PACE assessment before they'll refinance you. Still sound good? Didn't think so. What do you think this would do to property values? They'd drop by at least ten percent, right? It means that if you normally would have to put twenty percent down and get an eighty percent of value mortgage, after PACE, even if you have nothing to do with it, you'll now only be able to get a seventy percent mortgage. So you'll have to come up with an additional ten percent down payment on any house you'd want to buy in the entire county.

[NB - There is a lot more about how bad this scheme is in the book, but I do not have time to cover it here - so, I suggest you get a copy for yourself -DC]

An important point to note about the 'Green Deal' and 'Green Energy Loan Program' is that the loans are attached to your property but they add no value to your property. It's rather like buying a car with the loan attached to your house. As the car disintegrates, so it becomes less and less valuable, which means, if attached to your house, so your house will become less valuable. This is good for those (the globalists in international governments, banks and corporations) who want you to move out to cheaper buildings where they want to create their giant 'sustainable' or 'smart' Agenda 21 prison cities, while seizing more and more property for themselves or 'the community'. But then, what's theirs and what's the community's in the same thing - just think of Stalin and Mao.

As you will probably see, if you include the above quote from Rosa Koire, the entire 'Green Deal' is a vicious hoax. It's about drawing you into debt, someone else having a claim on your property, and ultimately reducing the value of your property and your ability to buy in the future.

Yes, the 'Green Energy Loan Program' is more or less exactly the same as the 'Green Deal'. The reason for this can no doubt be found in the word 'ICLEI', otherwise known as 'Local Governments For Sustainability' - an international NGO that pushes and manages U.N. Agenda 21 in all nations around the world.

U.N. Agenda 21 is a global plan, surreptitiously implemented locally to inventory and control all resources, which includes you and your property. It is a huge global land and power grab. Agenda 21 is also about destroying sovereignty by, amongst other things, getting local councils to be at the beck and call of that international ICLEI. And it's paid for by you in your LOCAL taxes - yes, ICLEI is an international NGO and it's paid for by you in your LOCAL taxes.

So, we can safely conclude that if we combine the 'Green Energy Loan Program' with the 'Green Deal' we have an international scheme; which, if we are to consider the globalist Rockefeller's involvement for one (see here for Rockefeller globalist quote), is about world government and total control, based in the climate fraud (there has been no global warming for almost two decades), designed to con you out of your cash and the value of your property. The inventory, or taking of your details, will come in part from the 'assessment' by 'an accredited adviser'. Surely this role of 'accredited adviser' is yet another surveillance job that costs you and me via taxes, and produces nothing other than an in depth study of what should be our private property?

But what about the fact that if our houses are not insulated? Wouldn't we be paying more for our energy bills unless we had our homes 'assessed' and unless we bought into this scheme?

My answer to that would be that there are no savings whatsoever, because, if I needed to borrow £10,000 from this 'Green Deal', since this loan is off-set against my house, my house is worth £10,000 less when I have taken the loan. So I can only see cost - the cost of whatever the loan is.

If they really wanted to help us save our money, how about admitting that the Department of Energy and Climate Change is based in fraud because there has been no so-called global warming for so long? And then how about closing it down so that they don't waste our money pushing these frauds onto the British public?

Without the Department of Energy and Climate Change, which in my opinion is a complete waste of time and money, which is involved with giving away £3 billion of our money in foreign aid to help 'tackle' 'climate change', our taxes would be greatly reduced. Then we could decide ourselves what to do with our money, and we would be well off enough to decide ourselves whether or not we want to have more insulation.

But what about Chris Huhne's 'prediction' in 'The Green Deal - A Summary of the Government's Proposals', that the 'Green Deal' will 'create 100,000 jobs'? The simple answer to that is that jobs are created only, for example, by lowering taxes, cutting EU regulations (getting out of the EU), cutting government intrusion, getting rid of carbon taxes. If you do these you'll empower local people to assess their situations in their way and in their way alone, in accord with English Common Law - our law, not that concocted by the EU dictatorship or the U.N..

So, please don't sign up for what I believe to be this 'Green Deal' con. Indeed, it should be a general rule of thumb that you do not borrow - ever, if you can help it. Debt is one of the root causes of all the ills in the world - especially debts involving government and those involved with international banks. Avoid the 'Green Deal' and you'll help keep the price of your house, keep money in your pocket and help stave off U.N. Agenda 21 and global government dictatorship.
